How the group works:

This writing group brings together writers at all levels to share current works in a friendly and safe group environment online. Rather than critique of work, this group offers friendly encouragement.

What to bring: Your creative work to share. Participants share their screen and read aloud. Maximum 10 minutes reading time per person and 10 minutes for discussion. Depending on the number of people that show up, there may not be enough time for everyone to share their work each month.

Code of Conduct: By participating in the Writing Group, you agree to abide by the Code of Conduct. This document is designed to ensure a smooth and enjoyable experience in your writing group. It outlines what you can expect from fellow group members and the facilitator, as well as what is expected of you. Adhering to the Code of Conduct is essential for maintaining your place in the group.

Notes on Feedback/Critiquing:

The group is not for critical editing purposes it is a creative environment encouraging discussion of the various works submitted in a collaborative process.
